Topic: Dolphins and Other Marine Life of Banderas Bay

Mother Dolphin with Young

Eduardo Lugo is a wildlife photographer with Wildlife connection with more than 18 years of experience working with cetaceans and more than 20 years as a naturalist photographer.

Wildlife Connection <http://wildlifeconnection.com/> is lead by biologist Ma. Eugenia Rodriguez (Maru) and wildlife photographer Eduardo Lugo, who have been doing whale research since 1991 and eco tours and whale watching guides since 1995. Wildlife Connection is a Mexican organization dedicated to the study and conservation of dolphins and whales. As part of their research activities and educational efforts, specialized tours are organized to offer general public an opportunity to experience a close contact with nature and its wild animals. In the company of professional biologists you can observe whales and dolphins living in the waters of Banderas Bay, marine turtles laying eggs on its beaches and exotic birds inhabiting the lush tropical forest. These tours, apart of their educational purpose, represent a source of funds for our research and conservation programs.

Date: Monday, March 30 2009, 11:45am - 2:00pm

Speakers: Byron and Craig Chamberlain, and Robert Powell

Topic: Mariners Insurance

Boaters Working with Boaters Mariners Insurance has extensive offshore experience allowing them to identify and anticipate potential exposure the boating community may face. Whether motoring or sailing a 27-footer or cruising a 200' mega yacht through the Pacific coast of Mexico or the Mediterranean, Mariners General also can provide home, car and healthcare insurance.

About Vallarta Yacht Club (VYC) – VYC is a nonprofit, member owned club, who's mission is to serve the boating community of Banderas Bay. It's objectives are social, promotion of nautical sports on the bay and the support of local community charities and environmental projects. It is best known for it's Junior Sailing Program, which teach young people nautical and marine skills.
